Where nobody has kept a list

Kidepo Valley National Park records about 475 bird species, with dry-country specials found nowhere else in Uganda. Mount Zulia, on the park's eastern side, is the same landscape with a thousand metres more altitude, riverine forest on the Himan and a fragment of Afromontane forest on the summit, and it has never been surveyed. We are inviting one or two birding operators to run the first survey with us in 2027 and to bring the first groups.

Five habitat stations for the baseline survey, from the Kidepo valley floor at about 1,040 m to the summit at 2,149 m.

HOW IT WORKS

Founding operators

The survey	Two expeditions in 2027, dry and wet season, with NatureUganda, Zulia rangers and the founding operators' guides.
Founding status	Preferred dates and the right to market the first Zulia birding tours for three years.
Afterwards	Birding operators licensed like other activity partners, with a conservation fee per guest-day and ranger escort.
Data	Records shared with Zulia and NatureUganda; sensitive locations protected.
Standards	Small groups, no playback in the summit forest, local guides trained through the Uganda Bird Guides Club.
